Quality four-bed family homes are difficult to find

QUALITY four-bedroom family homes in north and central Oxford are scarce, so competition tends to be fierce.

A 1930s-style detached home in north central Oxford has been refurbished and extended.

The house is in a corner plot in Lovelace Road and as a result, has larger than average outside space.

The property has four bedrooms and four bathrooms, including one en-suite and two reception rooms.

There is a large open-plan kitchen has a dining area with plenty of room for a table plus doors to the garden.

Outside there is a decking area, garage and driveway with space for parking up to three cars.

The house, which has flexible accommodation, has easy access to Cutteslowe Park, the ring road and soon to be open Oxford Parkway rail station for commuting.

It is available to let, unfurnished, from the end of the month through Finders Keepers at £1,795 per month.

The second family-sized property is a four-bedroom period house in Western Road, Grandpont, which has plenty of period features including bay window, feature fireplaces and high ceilings.

The property has spacious bedrooms, two bathrooms, one with a walk-in shower and the other with a bath.

In the kitchen/dining room there is an Aga and plenty of room for a large kitchen table.

There is a landscaped garden at the back which agents say is designed to be low-maintenance.

The property's location puts it just a short walk from the city centre, Oxford rail station and Christ Church Meadow. The house is available to let through Finders Keepers at £2,000 per month.
