COUNTRY life at its finest is showcased in two rental properties in rural settings.

Manor Farmhouse, in Ledwell, between Great Tew and Chipping Norton, is a classic Cotswold house with a Queen Anne façade.

Character features include fireplaces, beams, sash windows, an inglenook fireplace and wooden floors.

In a conservation hamlet, the Grade II-listed unfurnished house teams period style with contemporary chic.

There is a drawing room with sash windows, fireplace and wood flooring and dining room with inglenook, beams and limestone floor.

There are five bedrooms and four bathrooms.

Landscaped grounds include a walled courtyard garden, patio and garage.

It also comes with a two-bedroom cottage that agents say would be ideal to house extended family, guests or domestic staff. The use of a one-acre field may also be available through separate negotiation.

The home is offered for rent at £2,500 pcm, via the Banbury office of agents Finders Keepers. Call: 01295 276766 or click on finders.co.uk

Another property in a majestic setting and available for letting is Mount Pleasant Farmhouse, in Middle Claydon.

Its position on a country estate gives tenants access to impressive walks and views.

The main house has two reception rooms, one with multi-fuel stove plus a farmhouse kitchen/breakfast room.

There are four double bedrooms and two bathrooms.

The two-bedroom annexe has its own kitchen, bathroom and living room.

The property, which is available unfurnished at £2,500 pcm, comes with a private garden that backs on to open fields.
